Questcare was founded in 1996 when a single-hospital physician-owned group assumed responsibility for 14 emergency departments in north Texas. Insistence on delivering quality patient care in an environment that supported the physicians' needs created the high standards upon which Questcare was founded. On February 18, 2005, fifty-one of the full-time employed physicians of Questcare purchased Questcare Medical Services P.A. Since that date, Questcare has been known by the assumed name "Questcare Partners" a truly democratic emergency medicine group characterized by a one-member/one-vote policy. Questcare's board of directors and the elected officers now consist entirely of members of its full-time physician staff.

Certificate of Workplace Fairness

The American Academy of Emergency Medicine strongly supports fair working practices for emergency physicians. Consequently, it will certify that an emergency department meets standards for employment excellence if its physician employees are guaranteed the following five workplace conditions:

1. A reasonable due process policy.
2. A reasonable policy of financial transparency that protects physicians against financial exploitation.
3. A reasonable policy of financial equity that allows physicians to share in the department's profits.
4. A reasonable policy of political equity that allows physicians to improve their own working conditions.
5. Employment arrangements that do not impose post-contractual restrictions.
