David Crippen, MD FCCM, Trauma Alert: Motorcycle Crash. What to Expect Based on the Bike and the Rider

Richard Harrigan, MD FAAEM, This EKG Looks Funny: Diagnosing Lead Problems

Joseph Lex, Jr., MD FAAEM, Who Was Ringer? And Did He Really Lactate??

- 1) Explain why neurology was destined to flourish as a specialty during the late 19th century in France.
- 2) Discuss why many medieval artists used children with Down's syndrome as a model for the Baby Jesus.
- 3) Describe the beginnings of The Cleveland Clinic and how a major tragedy almost led to its closing before it was well-established.
- 4) Summarize three clinical syndromes described in Lewis Carroll's "Alice Through the Looking Glass."

Robert McNamara, MD FAAEM, Myths, Pearls and Pitfalls in Abdominal Pain

- 1) Understand the limitations of traditional rebound testing for peritonitis and be able to apply more accurate alternative physical examination maneuvers for this clinical entity.
- 2) Acquire sufficient knowledge of the medical literature on the use of narcotic analgesics for acute abdominal pain to allow them to confidently use this therapy.
- 3) Discuss the clinical features of several abdominal conditions in special populations including: appendicitis in pregnancy, acute abdominal pain in sickle cell disease and the general presentation of abdominal pain in dialysis and HIV infected patients.

Richard Shih, MD FAAEM and Michael Silverman, MD FAAEM, LLSA Review 2007

- 1) Identify and recognize the key points in the assigned reading selections, which will prepare you to take the LLSA test.
- 2) Review the emergency medicine board certification requirements.
